

Rutgers-Camden Honors College (September 2023 - Present)

Since the start of my first semester of collage back during September, I have been part of my schools Honors College program. Being in this program gives me a lot of opportunities to help serve the community in Camden, NJ, as the program prioritizes its members to be active in volunteer activities. Through it I have been assisting when I can at the many brunch and dinner services that the St. Paul's Episcopal Church offers weekly to help bring meals to the homeless community in Camden, which I hope to be able to continue helping out there throughout the new semester and onwards. This spring semester I will also be assisting the Honors College in an art project that will focus on completing old projects, adding a community art piece to the lobby of the honors class building, and hopefully starting a new project that future generations of students will be able to continue.

Key Club (October 2021 - June 2023)

Throughout my junior and senior year of high school, I participated regularly in my school's division of Key Club, an international school organization that focuses on giving kids opportunities to serve others in their and surrounding communities. As part of this club I helped various organizations with various activities, such as operating a snack and water station at an American Heart Association marathon run, and setting up equipment at a Donut Run marathon. I also had a chance to assist at a Museum of Imagination + Innovation (MOMI) event where children had the opportunity to engage in creative play using cardboard, and being a bell-ringer during the holiday season outside the Bridgewater Mall's Macy's. Although I am no longer an active member, this organization is what helped start my passion for serving the community, and my experiences in it carry with me to today.
